SESSION TOPICS AND DATES

Session 1: June 27 - July 1 Archaeology Week

Ancient pictures painted on cave walls, pieces of broken pottery, spear points found in local fields, are all clues from the past. They are puzzle pieces waiting to be formed into a story. Investigate what it's like to put those pieces together and discover stories from the people who came before us.

Session 2: July 5 - 8 The Powwow is Coming!

(no camp 7/4: reduced rate $148/M, $172/NYM)

Intertribal Powwows are a celebration of Native American culture. Make a drum, learn a dance, enjoy flute music. Share a behind the scenes look at many aspects of Native traditions that will be presented at MKIM's annual Powwow on July 9-10. Campers receive a free pass to the Powwow!

Session 3: July 11-15 Land, Lore, and Animals

Habitats determine which animals can live where, and the environment also has an impact on people. Hike to a beaver pond, trek through the trees, or dream about the desert to discover the ways that the land has shaped the culture and traditions of tribes across the country.

Session 4: July 18-22 Spin a Story Web/Weave a Story

Native American culture has survived in part through the deeply rooted tradition of storytelling and lore. Stories have been passed down from generation to generation, preserving the integrity of the Native culture and its connection with the natural world. Everyone loves stories. They open the mind and feed the imagination. Make your own story pouch and the props that go in it, listen to guest storytellers, and perform a story of your own.

Session 5: July 25 - July 29 Living Off the Land

Searching for wild foods, harvesting the garden, and preserving food for winter are important skills for Native Americans and anyone who has lived close to the land. Gather fruits of the season and discover just how many of the foods we eat today were introduced by the first people of New Hampshire.

Session 6: August 1 - 5 Games and Challenges

Games can be more than fun. They can teach important life skills such as observation, agility, and cooperation. Make traditional Native American games, then test your brain and body, or work as a team with others. Make and take home toys that can extend your fun long after the week is over.

WHAT PARENTS SAY

 My child was eager for more at the end of each day!

Good mixture of outdoor activities and educational fun!

The hands-on aspect was great!
